Answer either Topic 3 or Topic 4.Topic 3: Daily Life in a Roman TownAnswer all questions.*

1. Read this extract from a poem by Martial and answer the questions.

1 The first and second hours wear out clients;
the third keeps hoarse lawyers busy;
Rome continues in her various labours to the end of the fifth hour.
The sixth will be the siesta for the weary, the seventh will be the end of work.
The eighth up to the ninth provides enough time for the glistening exercise grounds.

6 The ninth orders men to rumple cushions piled high on couches.

7 The tenth, Euphemus, is the hour for my little books
when you take care of organising the ambrosial feasts and the Emperor Domitian is relaxed by heavenly nectar and he holds a small cup in his mighty hand.
